MRS. CAMORS VICTIM OF EXPLOSION OF OWN BOAT AT WATTS BAYOU SUNDAY

Horribly Burned, Passes Away That Night on Operating Table in New Orleans—Rupert C. Richards Burned About Face and Arm and Sustained Broken Right Wrist—Robert Camors Burned.

Mrs. Victor C. Camors, former resident of New Orleans and residing in Bay St. Louis the past five years, was the victim of the explosion of the cabin cruiser, "Yvonne," belonging to her son, Robert, about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon while preparations were being made to take the craft out of the boat house on Watts Bayou.

She was severely burned about the body and face, and both legs broken, and her sight impaired. Taken to New Orleans on the Mary Jane train into that city, she was rushed to the Hotel Dieu, conscious all the time, until given an anesthetic to receive necessary surgical attention. The shock of the accident and injuries Dr. Souchoy gave it out, was too severe and she never rallied, passing away shortly after 7 o'clock. Dr. Alvah P. Smith accompanied her to New Orleans.

R. C. Richards Injured.

Rupert C. Richards, brother-in-law of Mrs. Camors, who had entered the boat with her and her son, was thrown from his place and in falling broke his right arm slightly above the wrist proper. In addition to the break he was burned about the face, hands and arms and possibly sustained internal injuries. He was rushed to Bay St. Louis to the King's Daughters Emergency Hospital and later taken to his residence, residing at Mrs. Camors' domicile with his wife, a sister of Mrs. Camors.

Ill-Fated Pleasure Boat

The ill-fated "Yvonne" was blasted to a complete wreck, the stern blown out and the balance splintered. The intention of the explosion was heard from far and wide and the vapor and accompanying smoke of the explosion and fire could be seen from out on the water of Bay St. Louis. Built in New York, the "Yvonne" cost $5,200 and was shipped by steamer to New Orleans thence to this city, it being a present to young Camors from his mother at the conclusion of a successful season at college. It had been thoroughly tested and used at various times and proved a craft of sturdiness and worthiness in every particular. It was 30 feet long and was splendidly equipped and was one of the better and handsomer cruisers of its type on the coast.

Cause of Disaster.

Just how the accident occurred is not yet definitely solved, however, it was when the young owner, the steersman, was attempting to start the boat that the explosion occurred. It was within the confines of its own boat house at the Watts boat harbor. The day was one of unusual heat and the very atmosphere was charged with an almost unbearable temperature. It is possible gasoline had been escaping from some concealed leak and when the engine backfired the explosion followed.

Mrs. Camors, with her son, Robert, and Mr. Richards had gone into the cockpit of the boat, while a party of relatives, waiting on the runway inside the boat house attempted to push the boat into the main waters.

SCENE OF SUNDAY'S BOAT TRAGEDY ONE NOT TO BE FORGOTTEN

Bottom of Ill-Fated Cruiser
"Yvonne" Removed From
Waters of Watts Bayou

Visiting the scene of last Sunday afternoon's boat disaster, where Mrs. Victor C. Camors lost her life, her brother-in-law, R. C. Richards, and her son, Robert, were burned about the face, hands and arms, one is appalled by the havoc played with property and the surrounding woods.

So rapidly did the flames spread, after consuming the boat clean down to the water's edge, that surrounding boat houses were destroyed and away was sent a few hundred feet away was seriously threatened, damaged considerable extent. The weeds and hundreds of pine saplings for a wide area including fencing were completely burned and other property threatened.

But for the timely assistance of the fire engine from Bay St. Louis, the fire from the city fire department there would have been nothing left, besides a forest fire without limit might have followed. In fact such a fate to the woods and property would have been inevitable.

Boat houses that were destroyed were vacant at the time, save in the instance of the Black Cat, a catboat sloop owned by Peter Stewart, which was totally destroyed.

Another boat house, which narrowly escaped destruction sheltered a cruiser, a somewhat similar craft to the Yvonne, wherein the explosion occurred, belonging to Leonard Nicholson, publisher New Orleans Times-Picayune who owns a home on the Waveland beach.

The blight of a great conflagration covered a wide scope and one visiting the place is sickened by the destruction. The extent of damage by the fire cannot be accurately estimated with any degree of certainty.

A wrecking crew with derrick from Edwards Bros. Company of Bay St. Louis, were on the scene Tuesday evening and dragged from the shallow waters of where the ill-fated boat house was located all that was left of the craft, merely a flat bottom with all resemblance of sides burned away.

Chas. A. Breath and Junior Breath, Warren Traub, James W. Watts and others directed the work. The engine was salvaged, but of little use there was not a vestige to save. It was necessary to remove this boat bottom in order not to impede passage over the waters of the bayou.

By auto one may easily visit the scene, driving out Washington street to Watts Bayou, a place with shore board and easily found, with perfect roadway.

The wide swath cut by the fire and entailed damage cannot be imagined unless seen in person. The scene of devastation is one not to be forgotten.

ACCIDENT ON TRAIL.

An auto headed west overturned on the Old Spanish Trail Sunday evening about 7 o'clock, the accident occurring as the car struck loose gravel. The occupants of the car were taken to Bay St. Louis to the King's Daughters Emergency Hospital for treatment. The party included: Mrs. A. Wilson, two daughters, and son, Mrs. J. P. Long, all of New Orleans, Mrs. Wilson and her younger daughter escaped injury. The older daughter, Marguerite, had a serious cut on her leg in which 17 stitches were taken. The Wilson boy had a cut on his arm. Mrs. Long had a gash on her head in which a couple of stitches were taken. The auto was repaired the party went on to New Orleans, later Sunday night.

The new secretary has announced interest in the C. of C. and has been engaged in seeking new members. She is much interested in her new work and expresses her desire to serve the city of Bay St. Louis and surrounding community in her capacity.

A second interest in which Mrs. Juden is active at this time is that of attempting to secure the cooperation of property holders in cutting the weeds and grass on their property especially the many places in the center of town where the ground is unimproved, believing that the beautification and cleanliness of the city will add greatly to its attractiveness not only to local people but to visitors.

POSTMASTERS WILL HOLD SESSIONS ON COAST THIS MONTH

Petitions to Improve Taste of Stamp Glue Are in Order
As Mail Men Open
Convention

The men who send Mississippians those little "postage due" notices and forever mixing "box rent due" cards with more welcome mail will come to the Coast on Monday, July 21, for their annual two-day convention.

The Mississippi State Branch of the National League of District Postmasters—that is their official name. W. R. Waldrop of Courtland is president. Vice Presidents are J. T. Puckett of Chukky, and R. B. Cox of Batesville. A. L. Conner of Falkner is secretary-treasurer.

It is suggested that Coast citizens desiring changes in postal rules or practicing take advantage of the opportunity to pounce on the postmasters with their petitions. Not that the postmasters can do much about it, but perhaps it will make the petitioners feel better to take it out on someone connected with the department. For some time there have been strong undercurrents of agitation for more palatable glue on the backs of stamps. Letter mailers complain that the stickum now in use is unpleasant to the taste, too much that the glue taste remains too long after the letter has gone.

Also there is the desire in some cases that the pictures of U. S. presidents which appear on postage stamps be replaced by pictures of local celebrities in the towns in which the stamps are to be sold. This could be done only at great expense to the government, it is realized, but it would be good advertising for the town.

The postmasters have outlined a program which contains none of these issues. On that program however, are some of the influential names in the postoffice department of the nation—Miss Guide.

Secretary of State Visits.

Secretary of State J. J. Walker Woods was down from Jackson Monday, in his car, accompanied by a party including Mrs. Woods, and spent a pleasant hour with The Echo. Mr. Woods visited the office of chancery clerk and was there in the interest of business connected with the Pine Hills property now in process of liquidation. He numbers his friends over every county in the State and many here were glad to see him. He is one of the most efficient and obliging of State officials.

PRIEST VISITS

Rev. C. Schneider, formerly connected with St. Augustine Seminary here, and now a resident at Belle Chasse, La., where he serves four missions, was a visitor to the Bay for several days this week.

"TONY" SPATAFORA IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF HOTEL GREETERS

New Orleans Man Heads
National Organization, Defeating Eastern, Western Candidates.

A. F. "Tony" Spatafora, one of the most valued of the Coast's many friends among New Orleans hotel men, was elected president of the Hotel Greeters of America at the annual Greeters convention just closed in Denver, Colo.

"Tony," as he is known to Coast hotel men, received the office over strong candidates from both East and West. His election to Greeters' highest office follows twelve years of hard work on Greeter projects and active participation in Greeter conventions.

First national vice president of Greeters, five times president of Chapter 32, which he organized, and former president of the Louisiana hotel association, "Tony" has a record which made his selection at Denver a natural and logical procedure. A strong delegation of New Orleans hotel men accompanied "Tony" to Denver in the interest of his candidacy. Coast managers backed him enthusiastically.

PEARL RIVER CO. HATCHERY CLOSES SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Pays Nearly $10,000 to Farmers in Picayune Territory For Poultry
Products

The Picayune Hatchery, one of the new enterprises, today closes its first season, after what Manager Otto Rester considers a most successful run.

The hatchery opened in January buying hatching eggs from January till three weeks ago. During this period Mr. Rester's records show that the business paid farmers of this territory $2,748.07 for hatching eggs. In February Mr. Rester began buying market eggs, and during this period of operation, paid $2185 for eggs, most of which were shipped to New Orleans. Chickens of all sizes and kinds were also purchased by the hatchery management, and for these the producers collected $4,991.10 from the hatchery.

Mr. Rester had announced his intention of operating the hatchery throughout the summer, but the weather became so warm that the hatchability of the eggs was affected, and he was compelled to close, after having operated at a loss during the past month.

The hatchery will begin receiving hatching and market eggs the first week in September. Mr. Rester having orders already booked for chicks as soon as he is able to begin operation again.

Mr. Rester considers the future bright for the poultry business. "Of course, many have dropped out of the business on account of low prices, but many of them will come back, and I believe many others will embark in the chicken business because of the hard times," said Mr. Rester—Picayune Item.

BAY PANTHERS WILL PLAY LYMAN NINE

The Bay St. Louis Panthers will use an improved line-up in their game against Lyman next Sunday at St. Stanislaus diamond. First baseman Garner Reed is expected to return to his position, which will greatly strengthen the infield, and Frank Thrifley will probably be called upon for mound service. G. Y. Blaize will work behind the plate.

HOTELS DISCUSS MUTUAL BENEFIT AD- VERTISING PLANS

New And Coast Hotels To Further Cooperate Re-
ciprocally.

Waldo Otis, manager of the Hotel Weston, was among the Coast hotel men who attended the meeting in New Orleans recently of the Mississippi Coast Hotel Association and the New Orleans Hotel Association at the Hotel Roosevelt, with Franklin Moore Roosevelt manager as host.

At this meeting discussion of mutual advantages to the Coast and New Orleans hotels occupied the men present. Further cooperation between the hotels of the resort area, which, broadly speaking, extends from Ocean Springs to the Teche country, with a consolidation of interests of mutual benefit to the hotels of each part of this area were discussed.

The question of having the Coast hotels in their national advertising mention New Orleans and New Orleans hotels mention the Coast area was discussed. It was decided to prepare cabinets of pictures of the Coast and New Orleans, the Coast pictures to be placed in New Orleans hotels and New Orleans pictures in Coast hotels. A committee, two from New Orleans and two from the Coast, was named to handle the work. Louis Braun of the Tivoli, Biloxi, and A. J. Negrotto, Markham, Walter Reed, Great Southern; Waldo Otis, Weston; Clayton Rand and Ed Lipscomb of the Mississippi Guide.

Those from the Coast going to New Orleans for the meeting were Louis Braun, Tivoli; John White, White House; J. J. Ducote, H. & H.; A. J. Negrotto, Markham; Walter Reed, Great Southern; Waldo Otis, Weston; Clayton Rand and Ed Lipscomb of the Mississippi Guide.

The first contributions came from the work of students of the school who were most anxious for a gymnasium, and friends are aiding in the project.

HOSPITAL BUILDING IS PURCHASED BY KING'S DAUGHTERS AND SONS

Former E. H. Hoffmann Home On Main Street, Is Bought
From Weston Interests For Site of King's Daughters
Emergency Hospital—Drive For Funds Announced For August 2.

The King's Daughters and Sons Circle of Bay St. Louis has authorized the purchase as the King's Daughters Hospital of the large property on Main street, formerly the E. H. Hoffmann home and recently owned by the Riviera Land and Improvement Company; one of the Weston interests companies, arrangements for the purchase having been effected Tuesday night when the executive and special committee met at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, in conference with C. Greer Moore as realtor in charge of the deal, and with Harold Weston representing the owners.

Mrs. A. F. Fournier, president of the Bay Circle of King's Daughters and Sons, makes the announcement of the purchase. The sale price of the property was $10,000 the Weston interests making a donation of $2,500 for the hospital, hence outstanding payment for the hospital will be $7,500. Further Mrs. Fournier announces that Mr. Moore in his capacity as realtor, waived all commission, thus making a substantial donation to the hospital.

The property fronts Main street with 100 feet front and extends through to State street on the north, some 200 feet. The house is a large two-story frame building of about 10 rooms, fully adequate for the hospital and with ample room for any future expansion which may be proposed.

The circle has had in mind for some time a plan of owning its own building for the location of the emergency hospital. Last year Mrs. E. J. Leonard donated a lot for the building of a hospital. Members of the circle in conferring with various business people of the city came to the conclusion that a building located in the center of the city would be more suitable for an emergency hospital than one further from town, hence the cherished idea of seeking a building in the business part of town. For several weeks the committees have been conferring regarding the purchase of the site which was finally

RETURN FROM TRIP TO HAVANA, CUBA

Mrs. Ralph Seller and daughter, Miss Irene, and Misses Clara Kergosien and Jessie Cuevas returned home Tuesday night from their motor trip to Miami and intermediate points in Florida, and their ultimate destination, Havana, Cuba, boarding the steamer at Key West, Fla. After a six hours ocean voyage they reached Havana and enjoyed their stay in the land of Spanish things and customs superlatively.

The trip by auto to and fro covered 2,136 miles, traveled in Mrs. Seller's car. The ladies never experienced the slightest discomfort on the entire trip, neither were they sick at sea. They report the weather in Havana ideal and cool, a slight mist every evening cooling off the sun's heat of the noon time.

Contract has been let to Geary and Oakes, New Orleans contractors, for the construction of the St. Joseph Memorial Hall at St. Joseph's Academy, Bay St. Louis, as the Diamond Jubilee construction program of the academy. The contract for the building aggregates $51,000. The building is to be completed in 104 working days according to the contract. E. D. Spori of New Orleans is architect for the building which is designed to be a beautiful addition to the handsome building which now houses the convent and school.

This new building will be devoted to a gymnasium and auditorium combined with classrooms, on both first and second floors. The building will be 90x110 feet in size on the ground floor plan.

Work of assembling material on the grounds is going forward and it is planned to begin active building operations in the near future.

Rev. A. J. Gmelch, pastor of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic church, blessed the ground for the building June 27, in an impressive service and all is in readiness for the work to go forward.

The building became a dream in the minds and hearts of those connected with the academy more than a year ago, and last summer permission for the building was secured from the home convent of St. Joseph's order in France. Since that time Mother Clare, mother superior of the convent, has been assiduously carrying forward a campaign making the building possible by a large number of friends. An appeal is sent now to every former student to have a part in the new building, by purchasing a few bricks for the building. All contributions for the building will be gratefully received by the convent.

The first contributions came from the work of students of the school who were most anxious for a gymnasium, and friends are aiding in the project.

CARRIED TOO FAR.

Nothing that Governor Bilbo has ever done has so aroused the people of Mississippi as his wholesale dismissal of the men and women who composed the faculties of the State's higher educational institutions.

Having waited until such time as he would be able to name trustees of his own, trustees who would do his bidding—he proceeded with haste to chop off the heads of old and competent presidents and members of the teaching force at the State University, the A. & M. College and M. S. W. College and that, too, in direct contradiction to what he said in a special message to the legislature only a short while ago. At that time he said he abhorred partisan politics interfering with our educational institutions, but it seems that only "spoofing" the lawmakers as subsequent events demonstrate. In his message he said:

"My former record as governor is proof sufficient that I have never tried to play politics with our educational interests. The education of our young men and women is too sacred to permit the blight of partisan politics to mar or retard it."

Isn't it a pity that the governor could not live up to the high ideal to which he gave expression in his message, rather to have death those great schools and the cause of education the hardest blow conceivable.

The Echo does not wish to be understood that it believes all newly appointed members of the university and college faculties are unfit to succeed those dismissed, but rather to point out the governor's inconsistency and lack of sincerity. If there was ever a more flagrant exhibition of the evil of partisan politics displayed we have never known of it.

MRS. VICTOR C. CAMORS

The disaster of last Sunday afternoon with the subsequent tragic death of Mrs. Victor C. Camors, has palled the people of the local sections of two states and by the death of this excellent woman a loss that is irreparable has been sustained.

Mrs. Camors was the embodiment of all that was womanly. She had that gift born of divine spark that made her the true wife and mother, the friend of the needy and as a resident she was a citizen that any community might have well pointed to with special pride. Such citizenship was truly an asset.

Her charities were many but none but those succored knew thereof; as a Christian she practiced in her daily life the very quintessence of all that the term implies. Her life was like an open book. Candid, cordial and earnest, people sought the sunshine of her friendship. The genuineness and warmth of her spirit won for her the love and esteem of all with whom she came in contact.

It would be hard to be able to pay just tribute to so fine a character. But this edition of the town newspaper would be incomplete without a word of worth, without a chronicle of sorrow.

We pause to shed a tear, to offer a tender flower to her memory and to the bereaved the hand of sympathy.

GIVING GOOD ADVICE.

"No business man in any town should allow a local newspaper to go to press without an advertisement in its columns. This applies to both business and professional men. It does not mean that you should have a whole page, or even a half page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name should be mentioned, if you use only two-inch space. A stranger picking up the local newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in the town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business constantly and consistently does an injustice to himself and to the town. Advertising not only brings business to the advertiser, but it brings business to the towns where merchants and business men appreciate fully the enormous pulling power of the local paper."

The above advice is printed as a leading editorial in the American Banker's Magazine, and our sole purpose in copying same is to let our local business men know just how the value of advertising is regarded by so eminent authority as that periodical from which it is clipped.

Read and digest it, all ye non-advertisers!

"HURRAH FOR THE LAST WHO DIES"

Up at Stillwater, Minnesota, on July 21st, the sole survivor of the "Last Man's Club", will drink a toast to the memory of his thirty-three comrades who have passed on. Forty-five years ago the club was formed, the members being thirty-four Union veterans, all that remained of a company of volunteers who entered the war in 1861. Each year there was a banquet and as the members answered the last call their vacant chairs around the banquet table was draped in sombre black. In 1928 and 1929 only three of the old soldiers were left and since then two of them have died, leaving only Charles Lockwood of Chamberlain, S. D., now the last man. He will drink the toast as he sips the content from a bottle of wine that has been kept for that purpose since the organization of the club. He is 87 years old, and no doubt it will prove a sad and melancholy duty for the aged veteran to perform when he attempts to carry out the obligation assumed by him when he enrolled as a member of the "Last Man's Club."

HAS ANOTHER THINK COMING.

And now it is reported that Sam Anderson will probably be a candidate for attorney general. In an interview given out in Jackson the other day he is quoted as saying: "I expect to run for something, but I haven't definitely decided yet just what office it will be." Perhaps the Hon. Samuel thinks his activities as chairman of the "roving committee" entitles him to consideration at the hands of the electorate, and they will be only too willing to give him any old office he asks for but he has another thing coming to him.

LOCAL SIDELIGHTS

Residents of Waveland, sister city of beautiful homes and gardens, that number who wish to keep the city at bay and keep the stock ordinance and the wish is expressed that the council enact such measure.

Bay St. Louis labored for years for such ordinance. There was much prejudice to overcome and it required much time and effort to finally secure the measure desired. Several different administrations tried to dodge the issue and finally pressure brought to bear was so predominate that the stock law was finally passed and became effective. Today Bay St. Louis would not go back to the day of cows and other destructive live stock roaming the streets at large.

Our friends in Waveland, those who have the best interest of that place at heart and who wish to see really and other values sustained, should insist and get the stock ordinance. Our Chamber of Commerce might be an effective medium through which to accomplish the desired end.

ANIMALS AT LARGE A MENACE.

There is nothing to be gained allowing live stock to roam at large feeding off someone's garden or lawn, destroying shrubbery and other property. Besides there is a constant menace to both property and life. A picture of Bay St. Louis with some neighbor's or private dairyman's cows running at large feeding on the other fellow's vegetation or browsing in the shade or cool of fine trees and the picture of Bay St. Louis with the cow off the streets is entirely another subject. Our friends of Waveland, those who oppose, we feel are in the minority, and they should be made to bow to the will of the greater number.

PRIVATE DANCES IN COUNTRY COMPETING.

Dancing is just as popular as ever and perhaps more people are indulging in the Terpsichorean past-time, but the profits from the various ball benefits given hereabouts of late have proven anything but successful. Late benefits of this kind have netted $3.00 and in instances without profit. This is the state of affairs of this kind formerly cleared anywhere from fifty to the hundred-dollar mark.

A little investigation discloses the fact smaller and many private benefit balls over the county are the cause and our friends from the interior find pleasure at home, so to speak. How to combat this has not as yet been solved, and some remedy or possibly other means of raising money will have to be evolved.

REGATTA AT PASS WAS OUTSTANDING.

Outstanding in success from every angle was the regatta at Pass Christian, across from Bay St. Louis, last Friday. The races in every class had many entries and one of the more successful regattas in the history of coast history was the result of last week's affair. The day's event was brought to a close that evening by a ball of much beauty and pleasure, patronized from New Orleans and practically every section along the coast. This speaks well not only for the participants but for the management at Pass Christian. There is a corollary to the fact that the day's event was brought to a close that evening by a ball of much beauty and pleasure, patronized from New Orleans and practically every section along the coast. This speaks well not only for the participants but for the management at Pass Christian. ### INSPIRATION FROM THE TOP OF A WORKBENCH.

The top of a busy desk in an office in Bay St. Louis carries out an idea that is possibly not exactly original but it is new here and so simple and effective that it attracts attention and gives pleasure. The worker at his desk has under the heavy plate glass top pictured post cards from many sections of the country, cards that have from time to time been sent as souvenirs from friends traveling and form a collection of not only sentimental value but of lasting interest. Here in color are the cathedral-like spires and domes of the far Rockies, possibly the Grand Canyon; a scene of Chinatown in San Francisco, then again on another card a riot of color illustrations memorial and surrounding gardens in Los Angeles; a church of Gothic architecture in Chicago, another in New York City and so on. What a pleasant collection, scenes for introspection. From the tired moments of a busy day, what a pleasant reaction must follow from a glance to the pictures under the plate glass atop of the work bench. Try a similar collection, dear reader, at the place where you slave with the ball and chain, that pursuit we call making a living.

ADVERTISING IS THE GREATEST FACTOR OF ALL.

Advertising is the greatest selling factor everyone will concede. The better known are certain firms and corporations and the more popular their products the more advertising. Here is an instance where the average mark would seem to think advertising is of no value.

In Chicago the Wrigley Bldg., on Michigan avenue, along the Lake front, is perhaps one of the best known buildings in the country. Being at the point of its location both sides of the Chicago river, its heights elevate heavenward. Built of white tiling it is an unusual building, yet to keep it white and unlike other buildings, in order it might stand out more prominently, the atmosphere of smoke and smoke of the windy city, it is washed twice a year—every six months, and at a cost of $12,000 per annum. This is the contract price for the laundering of its walls. Then again there is another interesting feature. The entire current $142.00 per night to illuminate the exterior of this building. Batteries of spotlights from the roofs of lower buildings surrounding the Wrigley shed a glorious flood of light.

It is a spectacle once seen never forgotten.

And why this seemingly useless expense? The answer is advertising. A stick of chewing gum sells for 5 cents, and a bottle of coca-cola costs 5 cents, but millions of dollars are spent annually to advertise these small articles. In turn millions are earned for the manufacturers.

RUMANIA'S "ROMANCE"

The irresistible appeal royalty has for the human race is again illustrated in the case of King Carol of Rumania. Here is a hare-brained young man who has devoted most of his life to the pursuit of affairs d'amour, and who probably couldn't hold down a -35-a-week job if placed on his own. Put a crown on his head, cover him with royal robes, house him in a palace and he commands universal interest. It does not matter that the country of which he is monarch is an unimportant state smaller than the State of New Mexico, or that it is chiefly noted for the graft of its politicians, the poverty of its people, and the narrow intolerance of its upper classes. It is nevertheless a kingdom, and kingdoms, with their kings, queens, princes, dukes and whatnot, are ipso facto romantic. Remove titles and tinsel and nothing is left but a quarreling, unpleasant, incompetent family which, solely by accident of birth and marriage, controls the destiny of some 17,500,000 souls who would be a whole lot better off if the whole gang, from the flamboyant Marie down to the 8-year-old ex-King, were bundled out of the country.

WITH VETERAN JEFF HOLLOWAY OF COAST TRAIN POPULARITY

Beloved Engineer of L. & N. Tells of Experiences and Observations Along the Line Between New Orleans and Ocean Springs.

"Time was when people looked out for trains; now they make the trains look out for them." Old Jeff Holloway, pilot of the Coast Train, thus delivered himself of a conviction, formed after years of observation. This surprising reversal of habit, upon the part of the great public, has caused him much concern especially during the last ten years of the automobile industry's sensational growth. The crowding of the automobile upon the public highways has created a new cause for alarm upon the part of the engineer, who, being a brave man, loses his eyes with horror at seeing people take desperate chances with their lives, for the mere saving of a few moments' time.

"The trouble is, most people believe that a train can stop immediately; that is not so," said Mr. Holloway. "A train often cannot stop within its own length, which is several hundred feet; so it is impossible for the engineer to avert the accident he sees as inevitable, when some young cub makes a dash at a crossing, with just inches to spare. It's such narrow squeaks as this that makes an engineer's job a trial. It tells on his nerves. For after all, you know, we don't find it pleasant to crash into some one and main him for life." He gave an instance in point, showing the telling effect of over-strain of this sort. An engineer on a neighbor railroad, had broken down completely as a result of the many crossing encounters he had had, and had resigned his position and quit railroading forever.

His own recitations to danger are still normal, although he crosses four hundred crossings daily. On his daily trip between Ocean Springs and New Orleans, there are two hundred crossings, fort-seven of which are in the city of Gulfport, and these he crosses twice each day. But there have been very few accidents in his forty-seven years of railroading, and he is mightily proud of that record. His memory goes back beyond the Westinghouse air-brake to the days when they burned cord-wood in the locomotives, when black diamond was a smoky luxury. Known the length of the Mississippi Gulf Coast to nearly every man, woman and child, he is a romantic figure of generous proportions in a land where romance thrives.

Jeff was commenting upon the inauguration by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company of a new method of whistling for crossings at grade, which is calculated to have an influence toward reducing the number of accidents of this kind. The old method of signaling consisted of two long whistles and two short ones, to be begun at a marker of 1600 feet from the crossing. If the train was moving at a moderate rate of speed, the entire signal could be completed a good distance from the crossing, leaving an interval of comparative silence. Drivers of closed cars, therefore, through mental abstraction, or partial inattention to the sound by closed windows, might never hear the whistle.

To meet the contingency the Railroad Company instituted a change in the signaling, by requiring the engineer to sound two long whistles, one short and one long, final blow, the latter to be held until the crossing was reached. This final whistle brings the danger warning in loud proximity to the motorist, and whether in an open or closed car, he cannot fail but hear the signal.

This new signal consumes about ten seconds and concentrates the warning at the place where it is most needed. The result, Mr. Holloway says, shows that for the two months following the date of its inauguration, there was a decrease of 91 per cent in fatal crossing accidents and a 70 per cent reduction in non-fatal crossing accidents, on the L. & N. Railroad. Other factors which might have had a bearing upon this reduction had slight influence.

"Now," said Mr. Holloway, "that's a distinct advance in social relations; whenever society taken thought to the saving of human life, it's becoming civilized."

He hates to say it, but he has more trouble with the gentler sex, than with the men. This is due, no doubt, to their lack of familiarity with driving generally. On one occasion he had an experience which does not often come to an engineer.

He was approaching a crossing at a good rate of speed, when he noticed an automobile making for the crossing at a much greater rate of speed. He had been blowing the whistle and as the automobile came on, he noticed a woman in the driver's seat. She looked up just as the sound of the whistle fell upon her ears and she sailed right on to the crossing, stopping on the tracks. Meanwhile Old Jeff had been busily engaged in throwing the brakes in emergency, knowing that in his heart that the distance was too short for him to stop in time to avoid hitting the car. The woman sat in her seat, confidently expecting the train to come to a stop; when she realized that it would not stop, she began to make an effort to unload. But through some miracle of physics, the train performed better than its wont and by the time it reaches the crossing it had slowed down to a walking speed. Gently it nudged the automobile and pushed it parallel with the train about ten feet past the crossing, where the train came to a halt.

The automobile was disengaged from the pilot, who, showing a bent fender and some minor scratches. The fair occupant jumped from the car, just as Old Jeff clambered from his cab. With a lively forefinger he instructed her in the error of her action and exonerated her from any blame to be more careful in the future.

Composedly, none the worse for her upset, the young woman exclaimed, "I just know that kind-faced old man wasn't going to be mean

STANISLAUS MORAN, NEAR KILN, PASSED AWAY FRIDAY LAST

Was Last of Patriarchs of That Section of Hancock—Many Mourn His Passing Away.

At the residence of Mr. N. A. Cuevas, four miles north of the Kiln, where he spent his last years in peace and surrounded with attentions, one of the last patriarchs of that part of the country, Mr. Stanislaus Moran, departed this life, last Friday, with all the members of his family present and after he had been comforted by the prayers and the last rites of the church.

The deceased was 75 years old and the last surviving of 12 children. Besides his wife, he leaves 4 children to mourn his demise: Mr. Victor Moran, Mrs. N. A. Cuevas, Mrs. George Kerkosien and Mrs. Angelo Gavagni besides a number of grand and great-grand children. The esteem in which Mr. Moran was held did show itself by the number of people who came daily to inquire about his health during his last days and especially at the time of the funeral. Many from this and Harrison county came to pay their last respects to their kin and friend. The funeral was held from St. Joseph's church at Fenton, Rev. Father A. C. Denis officiating, with burial at Fenton cemetery. The active pallbearers were his grandchildren and nephew, Mr. Aras Cuevas, Mr. Virgil Cuevas, Mr. Oren Cuevas, Mr. Uris Cuevas, Mr. Agnel Moran and Mr. George Dedeaux.

of the cove, preparatory to embarking and moving out to the bay proper, at the mouth of Jordan river, to view the motor boat races about to take place.

Mr. Richards is well known locally, connected with the business of the local A. & G. Theater and a brother later passing to firing on the road, Mr. Y. Richards, of New Orleans and Bay St. Louis, and of the Public-Saenger Theaters, Inc.

J. W. Watts' Heroic Work.

J. W. Watts, the veteran boatman known perhaps better as "Uncle Jim," braved the flames to rescue Mr. Richards and later went back into the boat hull and pulled out Mrs. Camors. He was the hero of the hour and with others awaited the arrival of outside assistance. All the while Mrs. Camors suffered untold torture from the tenacity of the burns but bore it with a courage likened to that of a martyr.

Funeral at New Orleans.

The funeral of Mrs. Camors took place in New Orleans Monday afternoon from the residence of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Lanoux, residing corner Esplanade avenue and Chartres street, and who were with the party at the time of the tragedy, only they and others of the family had not as yet entered the boat, waiting to shove it out from the waters of a low tide.

Socially Prominent.

Mrs. Camors was the widow of Victor Camors, who died at his home in Bay St. Louis some two years ago or more. Her children are Robert, 17 and daughter, Alice, 13 years old. She was a native of New Orleans, aged 44 years. She was prominent socially both in New Orleans and Bay St. Louis. Before her marriage she was Miss Yvonne Loeliger. Four sisters, Mrs. Gaston Lanoux, Mrs. A. Lawson, Mrs. Rupert C. Richards and Mrs. Philip LeBlanc survive, in addition to two brothers, Carl and Edmond Loeliger, the latter of New York.

A sister of Mr. Camors, Mrs. Montrose, shortly before his death, met death by being crushed in an automobile accident in New Orleans. Mr. Montrose soon died later and an only daughter resides at the Camors home.

Mrs. Camors had traveled considerably by water, had gone to Europe several times, her husband owned a line of steamers on Lake Pontchartrain. In fact the immediate family had always been connected with the business of boats and boating and it was singularly fateful that this good woman should have met her death in the manner she did—by the disaster on board a boat she had purchased herself and as a gift to her son.

Following the train upon which Mrs. Camors was taken to New Orleans Sunday afternoon, on receipt of a message that she would die, the son and daughter were taken to New Orleans, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George R. Rea, warm personal friends of the Camors family.

to me. I felt like throwing my arms around his neck and hugging him." But all near accidents are not as pleasant as that. At another time he had a dispute with large oil truck, during which the driver of the truck had just squeezed by Jeff in his excitement shook his fist at the driver, who in turn brought his right hand into the position of a familiar salute and laughed. This made the old man furious and, gritting his teeth, he said, "If I had a shotgun, I'd salt you down right quick."

Mr. Holloway was born in New Orleans, July 7, 1861 and in the spirit of the time, was christened Jefferson Davis, after the great Confederate leader. Of frail physique, he was sent to spend his boyhood on a farm and strapping manhood found the lure of railroading standing in his veins. Answering the promptings of his heart, he took a job on a section, later passing to firing on the road. Finding it desirable to know something of the workings of the behemoth he was feeding daily, he entered the machine shop, which graduated him to the rank of engineer in the latter part of 1884. Since that time he has been continuously in charge of an engine.

In glancing backward to the pioneer period of the industry he is serving, he can recall clearly the difficulties they encountered and smiles when he thinks of those stirring times. The old link and pin coupler, of frail construction, often failed, causing his train to break in too, he running on several miles without knowing of it, the hind and following at a respectful distance. If such a thing were to happen today, the air-brakes would set automatically and the train would come to a stop.

Teh Yellow Fever epidemic took its toll of human life so swiftly and in such large numbers, that it took men of courage to stay at their posts in the face of the scourge; but Old Jeff stuck and grinned through it all. He has known the tracks to sink and buckle beneath the weight of his engine on his journeys over the marsh country, as the foundations of the roadbed sank into the alluvial soil. But none of these anxieties is comparable to that of sitting in the cab, tense with fear that some misguided soul will make a dash at a crossing, just to save a few moments. For many years he has sat in his cab with his soul on tiptoe, watching the automobiles win the race to the crossing, hoping that they always shall.

CRAB AND FLOUNDER HUNTING COLORFUL SPECTACLE BY NIGHT ON COAST

Something About the Hard and Soft Shell Crab—The Flounder Is Most Edible—Porter House Steak Fish Of The Water.

By ANTHONY V. RAGUSIN

Just now the unusual sport of hunting the soft crab and flounder is at its peak along the Mississippi Coast. Not only do the youngsters enjoy the thrills of the sport, but the grown-ups as well.

Just after dark the hunting parties take to the water. These must be a low tide and very little wind for a perfect night. Low tides prevail during the late spring and early summer along the Mississippi Coast.

The torch, which burns kerosene, is generally "home made." A basket is used to hold the soft crabs caught on the trip. The flounder spear is just a plain sharp pointed steel rod at the end of a wooden handle. Two or three persons make up the party, but sometimes the number is increased to five.

In order to catch the soft crab, the hunters must move quietly in the shallow waters, scooping up their unresisting prey with bare fingers. The sport is so interesting that one will walk miles around the bars and beaches before it is realized.

The hard shell crab comes near the shore or to the edge of a sand bar to shed or discard its shell. In less than an hour the process is complete. The crab leaves its hard shell in a low and loses nearly all of its energy. It cannot move fast and as its claws have no strength the crab falls easy prey to the party out for a night's catch. When the crab is found in the actual process of shedding, it is called a "buster."

If the soft crab is not molested after shedding, it gradually recovers its strength and within a few hours becomes a "paper shell." If it continues to escape the torch light bearers it soon becomes a hard shell again and will then use its claws to great advantage to avoid being caught.

The soft crab ranges in size from an inch to as large as the human hand. The size which is caught more frequently is about four or five inches long and is the best size for market and home use.

There are few professional soft crab catchers. Most of the parties go out just for the sport and divide their catch among their friends the next morning. However, hundreds of dozens are sold each week to hotels, restaurants, and fish dealers. Some shipments are made by express to distant cities.

The flounder is caught in somewhat deeper water than the soft crab. Occasionally one is spied at the very water's edge off a sand bar. The flounder is one of the sea's most peculiar fish. He is flat, white cream color, on one side and brown on the

ADMIRAL BYRD TO VISIT NEW ORLEANS IN FALL IS PROMISE

New Orleans looks forward with keen anticipation to the promised visit of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in the fall. Admiral Byrd, hero of several epic expeditions, has promised Commodore Ernest Lee Jahneke, first assistant secretary of the navy and native New Orleansian, that he will visit New Orleans in the autumn.

Commodore Jahneke extended the city's invitation on behalf of Mayor T. Semmes Walmisley. Word has just been received that, while Admiral Byrd finds it impossible to visit New Orleans as soon as both he and the city would desire, his plans call for a definite trip there.

BIBLE PRINTED IN 1507 FOUND IN N. O.

Its type clearer than that of most modern novels, and scarcely yellowed from age, the oldest book in New Orleans has been uncovered in the New Orleans Public Library.

It is an early illustrated German Bible, dating back to at least 1507, probably one of the few of its kind and period in America.

Confirmation of the extreme age of the Bible was received yesterday from both German and American book experts, Librarian, D. D. Moore said.

The Gutenberg Bible, first to be printed with movable type, was finished in 1453, only a half century before the estimated date of the volume here.

Other side. Both eyes are on the brown side. When the tide falls the flounder comes up to low water and buries itself in the white sand. The torch light bearers must walk carefully to find him. A slight noise, and in a flash he leaves a streak of water and sand as he heads for deep water.

It takes a quick hand to spear a flounder. He must be held firmly to the sand until a string can be placed through his gills. Occasional flounders are caught weighing as high as six pounds. One of this size can give a good fight before being "strangled."

The flounder is one of the finest of the fish family for eating. One reason is because of the small amount of bones. He is truly the "porter house steak" fish of the water.

ATTORNEY L. M. GEX WINS FIRST MAJOR CASE CHANCERY COURT

Provision of Will As Intended Interpreted In Favor of Mrs. Elise Gramont

Lucian M. Gex, young attorney of this city, won his first major case in Chancery Court of Hancock county Tuesday when certain heirs of the late Hippolyte A. Perre, of Bay St. Louis, were contesting a certain provision of the decedent's will.

It appears Mr. Perre, who had made his will some years back, dictating its provisions to an attorney, who has since left here, said he wished to leave a certain improved piece of property, located in Waveland, to his sister, Elise, Mrs. Gramont, residing in New Orleans. He had a sister Alice, but dead at the time and the attorney mistook it was intended to go to Alice especially since she was dead, and that it was an error or either mispronunciation or misunderstanding. Alice and Elise, uttered in French, as Mr. Perre was, are pronounced almost similarly. The heirs of the dead Alice were contending for the property.

Judge Russell heard the young attorney's presentation of the case, and his logic and reasoning made it plain to the bench that the contention of Mrs. Elise Gramont, through the young attorney, was correct. Mr. Gex was roundly complimented on his success. It stamped him as a painstaking and thorough.

People who visit the capital city from all parts of Mississippi report that the tax paying men and women will scrutinize the fitness and qualifications of candidates for all offices from governor to constable, including candidates for the legislature and for the office of district attorney. The people who hold office do so by the vote of the tax paying men and women of the state and it is natural that the tax paying men and women of the state should select the very best officers from the material that is afforded for every office. ## NOT A GOOD CITIZEN

Urging folks to "Buy at Home" sometimes seems a hopeless task, and it is difficult to convince some persons it is to their advantage, when they can secure what appears to be a little better bargain away from home, but when a merchant himself goes out of town to purchase articles he can buy in his own home town, this is just about the limit.

The writer walked into a place of business a few days ago to find the proprietor unceremoniously telling him that he had bought from an out-of-town agent, which he could have bought from a Bogalusa dealer.

His only excuse was he got a little better price. Yet every dollar this merchant has made, and he has been successful, far more so than the average, came from the pockets of Bogalusians. But in spite of this, when he needs an article for his place of business, instead of patronizing a home dealer, he sends his money out of town, where every penny of it will stay, until the traveling agent spends a few nickels here on his next trip. In the meantime this merchant will continue to thrive, because he happens to have one of the few products a mail order house does not carry, and agents do not peddle.

We don't call that very good citizenship.—Bogalusa (La.) Enterprise.

"It was ever thus." Business men can be found in every community who patronize firms, mail order houses and peddlers of goods for the reason that the home dealer asks perhaps a few cents more for the same articles. The Echo has preached the gospel of "Buy at Home," for to these many years, but we are sorry to say, it has not resulted in a stoppage of the practice or habit some of our local people have of sending Bay St. Louis dollars a long way from home never to return again. Instances of such practice have been felt by this printing establishment. Our office has been for years admirably equipped to do printing of every description in a good style, and just as cheaply perhaps as any of the same work elsewhere, yet there are firms and individuals who send their printing orders to out-of-town shops, and when parcel post or express charges are tacked on the cost more than the same work would amount to if the order had been sent to this office.

If there is any one institution or enterprise in a community which deserves, and is entitled to, the individual support of all the people of the community it is the local printing plant. Week after week, and year after year, The Echo is forever laboring with all its might to advance the material, as well as moral interests of the city, county and State, and the one and only way in which its efforts for the betterment of the community is to have the united support of the people it seeks to serve. In no other way can we know that such efforts to serve the community are appreciated.

The local business firms, and every enterprise of whatever character, should be shown the consideration due them—given every dollar's worth of patronage it is possible by the local public. The Echo does not subscribe to its Bogalusa contemporary's characterization of the man who does send away from home for a goods which are kind as "Not A Good Citizen," but would rather class him as thoughtless and lacking in a superlative degree element in his make-up the loyalty and interest which every citizen should have and exercise in behalf of the old home town and its institutions.

Lower mathematics for school girls is recommended by the Kansas City Post, among the problems suggested being that of budgeting the income of a husband who earns about $25 a week. If one might be caught how to provide for groceries, clothes, rent, gasoline, cosmetics, haircuts and other necessities out of such an income, with enough left over to pay the installments on the car and radio, it would be of more practical benefit than a knowledge of trigonometry, or even calculus.

Strong soap or soap powder should not be used on dishes decorated with gilt, because these cleaning materials may contain substances which are injurious to gilt.

LON CHANEY SCORES SWEEPING HIT IN FIRST TALKIE, A. & G. SUNDAY

Gripping mystery, a love story strange as the grim plot that surrounds it, and Lon Chaney, speaking for the screen at last, and using five voices—even singing—in his debut on the talking screen; these are the magnets that will draw crowds to the A. & G. Theater, Sunday and Monday, where "The Unholy Three" will be shown.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, one of Chaney's greatest early successes on the silent screen, is a new and infinitely more powerful drama with speech. And Chaney, with stretch added to his deft artistry at pantomime, actually presents his fans a new Chaney—a Chaney more forceful, more mysterious and more gripping.

His use of five different character voices, one of them the impersonation of an old woman, and facial disguises, has started him doing, with his voice, what he always has done with his face. It would be hard indeed to venture a guess as to which of his voices is his natural one—just as, through his constant disguises, he never lets his face entirely devoid of make-up.

Star Has Strong Role Chaney plays a ventriloquist, involved in a sinister plot with two side show companions, a giant and a midget. As a sinister "Echo" he said the strangest plots of fiction ever invented.

Lila Lee plays the heroine, giving a powerfully dramatic performance that runs the gamut of emotions.

FIRST YEAR OF FOREST PROTECTION IN PEARL RIVER SECTION OF CO.

Shows Work Accomplished With H. W. Givens, of Westonia, as Ranger—Protected Area Contrasted With That Exposed.

The first year of forest protection for the Pearl River Forest Protective Area in Hancock County has just closed. The area under protection includes over 100,000 acres in south-western Hancock county. Ranger H. W. Givens, of Westonia, has been in immediate charge.

During the year a steel tower was erected near Westonia on which there was maintained a lookout during the entire first season. There was purchased trucks to convey fire crews and modern fire fighting equipment. Several forest wardens were appointed and considerable telephone mileage built to connect them with the lookout tower. Fire breaks were constructed to aid in fire control. Patrolmen were employed when needed.

The past season has been very successful. A very large part of all the cut-over lands outside the protected area have been burned over. Inside the area but 7,748 acres, or about 8 per cent of the land under protection was burned. The damage done is estimated at approximately $7,000.00. The size of the average fire was 88 acres and the average damage per fire was $68.00. There were 94 fires in all. The cost of fighting them was $245.00. About 257 fighters were employed. The average cost per fire was $2.60. The total cost of the area for all items, including improvements was $7,811.00.

Persons living in and about the protective area say there is much more unburned land than ever before. Residents of the area have, with a few exceptions, given splendid support to the forest protective work. The Forest Service looks forward to a still more successful season next year and expects the protective area will be enlarged. New equipment and more improvements are planned.

SURVEY TO BRING MISSISSIPPI AID

Prosperity Is Forecast from Findings of Research Commission

Tupelo, Miss., July 11.—A new day for agriculture, industry, commerce, transportation and the individual will come out of the findings of the Mississippi Research Commission created by the 1930 Legislature, A. Anderson Pace, Chicago, said here today in the first of a series of addresses outlining the work of the commission headed by R. B. Clark of Tupelo.

"Statewide interest and unified support is essential to the success of the work," Mr. Pace said, "and if nothing more than the unification of Mississippi would be the result, the act would more than have justified its purpose."

"This work is the beginning of a campaign which has the means of bringing to Mississippi the following:

"Unification that will enlist the entire manpower behind a single plan to make Mississippi a state which will possess the elements of prosperity for business, the farm and the individual."

"More economical and efficient government that will be fed from those factors that are making the costs of government unnecessarily high."

"A simplified and sounder system of taxation."

"A successful development campaign for Mississippi that will be based not upon claims but upon facts."

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

WELL DONE!

(New Orleans Item)

The loyal and courageous men who have saved Louisiana from the most colossal political fraud which any Southern state was ever threatened will receive in due course from the people as well as from students of public affairs, the recognition that is their due.

The disloyal subversives who sold out for profit, in the coin of spoil and self-respecting citizens who repudiated that they deserve at the hands of their people.

The stupid and ill-doing, though possibly well meaning, statesmen who supported Mr. Long's effort for a vast Constitutional amendment, this State, under the mistaken notion that this was the only way to get roads that their people seemed to want, will likewise be appraised on their course, for what it was.

It is enough now to express for all decent and self-respecting citizens who love liberty, how to law, honor the Constitution, and cherish private and public rights, their thanks to the understanding Opposition at Baton Rouge which took away from Dictatorship its tool of control of the processes of State legislation.

Their splendid stand marks the beginning of the end of an evil nightmare that has afflicted Louisiana for two years, and has dishonored and humiliated it before the rest of the United States.

MARKS A NEW ERA IN ANIMAL HUSBANDRY

Lifting of the federal quarantine against shipment of cattle from South Mississippi not only constitutes official recognition of the fact that the fearful battle against the cattle tick is actually and finally won, but also marks the beginning of a new era in animal husbandry in this section.

For the first time progressive farmers hereabouts can import blooded cattle without fear of heavy loss through the incursions of tick fever. Cheap land and an abundance of it combined with excellent native pasturage and a suitable climate, make this a great potential dairying and cattle raising section. Only the cattle tick has stood in the way of a marked development in this diversified agriculture. And now the pesky tick belongs to the past. Today the state of Mississippi from Tishomingo to the Gulf is actually and officially free from this menace.

Already are looking across the state line at our neighbors with a superior air and asking ourselves how much longer they expect to let politics and misunderstanding prevent the consummation of a program which has everything to commend it. Certainly we would not trade places with them for any consideration worth while to have the whole, blooming world know that as for Mississippi, our state is tick free with no federal quarantine and no further pickering and strife. The future is altogether rosy. Let our neighbors worry about the tick. Our concern is to see how quickly we can eliminate the scrub sires and improve the quality of our cattle.—Hattiesburg American.

BELOVED YOUNG LADY PASSES AWAY AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS

Helen C. Wolfe, Sister of J. Townsend Wolfe and Grand-Daughter of Mrs. N. Burg Mourned.

Taken suddenly and desperately ill some two months ago with an unusual ailment, Helen C. Wolfe, who lived with her grandmother, Mrs. N. Burg, Union Street, Bay St. Louis, died at Hotel Dieu, New Orleans, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, aged 16 years, a native of New Orleans.

She was a daughter of the late Dr. J. Townsend Wolfe and the late Josephine Burg Townsend, also a sister of J. Townsend Wolfe of Bay St. Louis and of Marion J. Wolfe, of New Orleans. An aunt, Mrs. Ben F. Markey also survives and an uncle, Louis J. Burg of Bay St. Louis.

Her grandmother, with whom she had made her home since infancy when her parents passed away, was unable to journey to New Orleans, hence the body was shipped to her home in this city Monday afternoon and returned for interment that afternoon, after religious services had been held at the church of Our Lady of the Gulf, to which many attended in sympathy to the bereaved family and in testimony of the love and admiration each and everyone knew her here by reason of her sweet disposition and lovable character. It has well been said that God loves his own and that only the pure shall see heaven.

It was recounted at the time she was taken to New Orleans some months ago, that Helen had been the victim of an ailment that developed into complications and which deprived her of the use of her limbs. It was thought that by only long and constant care and attention science would succeed in rescuing her from what only proved inevitable.

The grandmother, who in her declining years idolized this child and who held her in her arms with hope to guide her steps and hopes from day to day; the brothers and other relatives will have the heartfelt sympathy of many friends in this hour of bereavement.

Services at the church were conducted by Rev. Father T. Fahy whose remarks were fitting and especially beautiful. His tribute was tender and fitting, sympathetic and his words of spiritual consolation seemed highly inspired.

He likened the taking away of this sweet young girl to an angel's soul to the story of the king and the flower. The king had visited the gardens of the palace and saw above all one rosebud of exquisite beauty. He plucked it not, thinking to return the next day when in its place he found instead the open flower and with its color and fragrance gone. So it was seemingly with the Master, only He showed the wisdom of gathering unto his own the bud in all its blush of youth and tenderness of innocence.

Bay St. Louis, July 11.—Helen C. Wolfe, daughter of Dr. J. Townsend Wolfe and Mrs. Catherine Scaffide, Catherine Burg, Francis Scaffide, Eran LeBlanc, Yvette Telhiard, Milma Mathern, Nicolas Angelo.

The body was returned to New Orleans Monday afternoon and the funeral took place in that city Tuesday morning, 10 o'clock, with solemn high mass, St. Joseph's Church, Tulane avenue, at which Rev. Father LeSage, the pastor officiated.

Pall bearers at New Orleans were Marice Artigue, Gilbert Hattier, Christian Hoefeld, Ainsworth Kidd, Marcel Genault, Curtis Mathern.

PECAN MARKETING

Organization of a half million dollar pecan cooperative marketing association under the auspices of the Federal Farm Board is announced from Washington. W. A. Swann of Lyman is temporary secretary of the association and Theodore Bechtel of Ocean Springs is a director.

This is the sixth central commodity cooperative sales agency set up with the assistance of Chairman Alexander Legge and his associates since the farm relief act went into effect. It enables pecan growers to avail themselves of the same advantages which this legislation extends to other producers.

Better grading of South Mississippi pecans and orderly marketing of this lucrative crop will add appreciably to the cash money in circulation hereabouts. Surely local pecan growers will take advantage of the formation of this newest cooperative before the next nut crop moves to market.—Hattiesburg American.

IT IS TO BE REGRETTED THAT THE YOUNG SHOULD DIE

By Felix J. Underwood, M. D., State Health Officer.

Death is sad from any angle viewed, but the immutable law of the universe decrees that every living thing must die.

It is not so hard to witness the passing of one whose life has been filled with many years—whose work is done, whether for good or evil; but the saddest drama that can be witnessed is the death of a child. Innocent, full of life, with a promise of three score and ten years to live, why should it be cut down in its tender years?

Why should the boy and girl just passing into womanhood or blossoming into young manhood be cut off from a world happy to them and full of promise? That is a sad sight also. Sadder still is the untimely end of a mother, whose life is wrapped up in love and concern for her young.

Some have received consolation for their loss in the assertion that this is the Lord's will and that one so young must pass away, it is His will. We do not believe that this is so. We believe it is the Lord's will that they do not die. The Good Book has promised three score years and ten to all. Was it the will of the Creator that two thousand children under ten and two thousand others from ten to thirty years of age should have died in Mississippi last year from diseases and accidents wholly preventable? Should one hundred and thirty-six of these have died from typhoid fever; two hundred and twenty-one from malaria; eight hundred and thirteen from tuberculosis; and nearly a thousand from accidental means?

Too much has been blamed on the Lord for loss of loved ones when in fact He may be holding us at fault for neglect to put into use the knowledge we have gained to thwart disease and prevent serious accidents.

PECAN MARKETING

Organization of a half million dollar pecan cooperative marketing association under the auspices of the Federal Farm Board is announced from Washington. W. A. Swann of Lyman is temporary secretary of the association and Theodore Bechtel of Ocean Springs is a director.

This is the sixth central commodity cooperative sales agency set up with the assistance of Chairman Alexander Legge and his associates since the farm relief act went into effect. It enables pecan growers to avail themselves of the same advantages which this legislation extends to other producers.

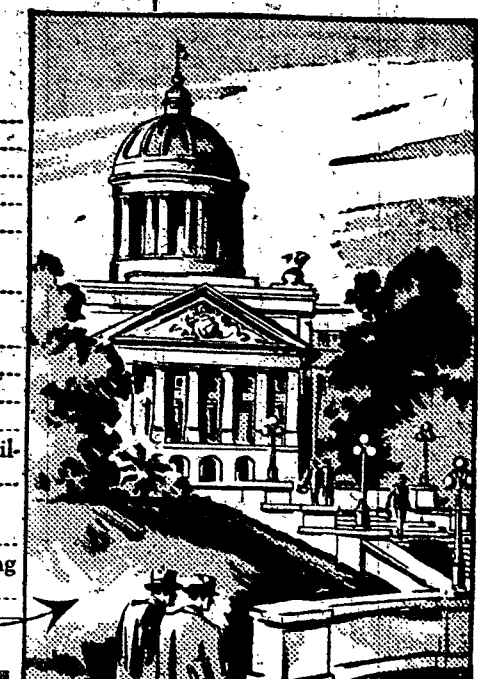

Better grading of South Mississippi pecans and orderly marketing of this lucrative crop will add appreciably to the cash money in circulation hereabouts. Surely local pecan growers will take advantage of the formation of this newest cooperative before the next nut crop moves to market.—Hattiesburg American.

Sale of Lands For Taxes.

According to the list of lands advertised for sale in the current issue of the Free Press, people are becoming more and more unable to cope with the tax burden as the years go by. We estimate that fully twice as many are unable to pay their taxes this year as there were last year. We fought this exorbitant road levy, and at a great price, but it availed nothing. We knew the assessment was too heavy, even in good times when people were making money and crops were good; now, that a national depression is over the country, crops are burned up, it is nothing short of a tragedy. And in the face of the high taxes, the board is now complaining that there is not enough money to do even small jobs that would not only make passable some impassable places, but would afford labor for some of the breadwinners in the country. We predict a general wakeup and shakeup in the political affairs of the county next August. Things run along very nicely sometimes, but when the people are burdened to the extent of having their homes sold from under them, even under a very relaxed tax sale, they begin to complain, and their dissatisfaction often times registered at the ballot box, sends into political oblivion those who seemed impregnable and secure.—Pleasure Item.

Taxes

The cost of running our government is increasing more rapidly than our population and wealth. Result: higher taxes for all—individuals and industries. In 1928, taxes collected in the United States were $230,000,000 greater than in 1927, and $684,000,000 greater than in 1926, largely due to rising state and local taxes.

Railroad taxes amounted to $403,000,000, in 1929 (a new record), or $1,103,000 per day, and absorbed the entire net revenue derived from 87 days of railroad operation. One-fourth of our railroad facilities might as well have been turned over to the tax collector for the entire year. In effect, 387,000 railroad employees, 14,000 locomotives, 17,000 passenger trains, and 540,000 freight cars and other facilities valued at $6,000,000,000 worked solely to pay the railroad tax bill in 1929.

In 1929, L.&N. taxes amounted to $7,566,457, an increase of 191% in fifteen years.

The railroads are willing and ready to contribute their just share to the cost of efficient national, state, and local governments. In common with other forms of business, they object strenuously to being taxed unjustly. More-over, as railroad taxes are added to the cost of supplying transportation, which must ultimately be borne by the public in freight and passenger rates, it seems highly desirable that every individual should begin to preach and practice the doctrine of economy in the use of public funds.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION.

(From U. S. Dept. of Agriculture) Paint or varnish spatters on glass may be dissolved with turpentine or alcohol or may be rubbed off with a dull knife.

At that, a back seat driver is no worse than an armchair housekeeper.—Arkansas Gazette.

Vary the tartness of your French dressing occasionally by using in place of plain vinegar lemon or grapefruit juice, or tarragon vinegar, or spiced vinegar from pickles.

Do you ever cook cucumbers? They are delicious when peeled, cut in halves or quarters and steamed; or cut in lengthwise sections, stuffed with a vegetable mixture, and baked.

A few grains of pop corn on top of a plate of corn soup gives an attractive appearance. A spoonful of whipped cream is a good garnish for clear and cream soups, and adds to the food value.

Prepare spring onions this way: trim off the green tops and cook the onions in lightly salted boiling water in an uncovered vessel until tender. This will take about 20 minutes for fresh young onions. Drain, add more salt if necessary, and pepper, arrange on toast like asparagus, and melted butter, and serve at once.
